ANOTHER SHOT

Fired at Guiteau on His Way to the Jail from the Court

The Prisoner has Another Narrow Escape from Death.

The Would-be-Avenger at Large and Guiteau Terrified.

Continuation of the Trial by the Examination of Witnesses.

THE CROWD INCREASES

WASHINGTON, November 19.—The crowd about the court house this morning was far greater than upon any former day It was with the greatest difficulty that those whose presence was needed in the court room could gain admission To avoid the otherwise inevitable scramble it had been found necessary to issue tickets of admission and only ticket holders were admitted to enter At 9 40 the doors were opened and in one minute every seat was occupied a large proportion being ladies

GUITEAU ARRIVES AND HAS BREAKFAST

Guiteau arrived at 9 o clock and without any particular demonstration on the part of the crowd was taken at once to the prisoners' room where he ate his breakfast and expressed himself as well satisfied with the progress of his case Scoville being questioned in relation to Guiteau's alleged new counsel, Judge Magruder of Maryland, stated he was not aware of any tender of services from Judge Magruder He had received several offers from lawyers strangers to him, and feared he might make a greater mistake by taking at this late stage of the trial, counsel unknown than by proceeding alone He does not object to other assistance than Robinson

CONTINUATION OF THE TRIAL

The court opened without incident and George C Maynard, electrician, was put on the stand and testified to loaning Guiteau $10 at one time and $15 at another

Guiteau protested against the evidence He did not think it any one's business whether he owed $25 or some one owed him "Maynard is a good fellow and I owe him $25 That's all there is in it"

District Attorney Corkhill desired to prove by witness that Guiteau borrowed money with which he bought the revolver

On cross-examination, the witness thought Guiteau looked seedy and hungry

John O Meara testified to selling a pistol to Guiteau He could not identify it as there were were thousands just like it

The charges were then drawn from the revolver at the suggestion of counsel, and much to the relief of the audience Pending an examination of the pistol, Guiteau desired to announce to the court that he invited John B Townsend of New York, Leonard Sweet and A. S. Trude, of Chicago, to assist him There are plenty of brains on the other side and he desires such on his in the interest of justice "Another matter," he continued, "I desire to call the attention of the court to There are a number of disreputable characters in the court and some threats of violence have been made during the week past I have no fears of my personal safety, as the chief of police has kindly furnished a body guard, and I wish to notify all evil disposed persons if they attempt to harm me my body guard will shoot them down That's all there is about it." Then nodding to the reporters he added "Reporters, put that down"

COL. A. S. ROCKWELL

was the next witness He began to detail the occurrences at the depot when Scoville interposed, acknowledging the killing Guiteau quickly shouted, "No, your honor, we acknowledge shooting, not killing" Col Rockwell briefly stated the facts within his knowledge, and without cross examination was followed by

GENERAL D. G. SWAIM

Witness was at Elberon when the shooting occurred Swaim described briefly his association with the president during his illness An impressive passage occurred during his testimony "What were the president's last words," asked Mr Corkhill "His last words were," replied the witness with emotion, "Oh! Swaim!"

DR. D. W. BLISS

was then called

The witness gave a narrative covering from the time he was called to the president's side fifteen or twenty minutes after the shot until his death The immediate cause of death was hemorrhage The witness then explained minutely the character of the wound, using the upper portion of a wired skeleton for the purpose of illustration, and detailed at length the progress and symptoms of the case Pending the arrival of the fractured vertebra, which the district attorney announced had been sent for, the witness was subjected to a lengthy cross-examination, the supposed object being to lay the foundation for the theory of malpractice, which Guiteau insists must be made the foundation stone of his defense Quite the sensation of the trial was produced when the district attorney suddenly drew from a pasteboard box on his table a section of a human backbone, and, holding it up, inquired "Do you recognize this, doctor?" The audience hung breathless upon his answer as the witness, in measured tones, replied "I do It is a portion of the vertebra of the late President James A Garfield"

The vertebra was then handed the jury and its character and extent fully explained to them by Dr Bliss, followed with the closest attention on the part of the entire audience with the sole exception of Guiteau, who devoted himself with his papers only occasionally glancing up with the air of a man being bored with a recital in which he could have no interest The vertebra being returned to the district attorney's table Scoville reached over and requested an opportunity of examining it It was handed him and Guiteau, who sits immediately on his right examined it closely as Scoville turned it over from side to side He made no move to touch it, however, and gave not the slightest indication of any feeling other than casual curiosity

The examination of witnesses was progressing when the recess hour arrived

SCOVILLE ASKS CERTAIN QUESTIONS

Scoville inquired minutely as to who had authorized witness to take charge of the case Davidges suggested that that had nothing to do with the matter but witness answered by saying the request had been made to him on the morning of July 2d by the president no one else being present but Mrs Garfield Scoville also inquired about the quantity of morphia administered asked about the probing and washing out of the wound and the possibility of its having been thoroughly probed He asked also if the real track of the ball had been known from the first To the question on that point the witness gave a negative reply He was also asked by what authority most of the doctors who had been originally in attendance were discharged and he said it was by authority of the president given in the presence of Mr Garfield and witness He was asked as to where the ball had been found and replied that all the viscera had been taken out and placed in a bowl and in that bowl the ball was found in its cyst

After recess a long and tedious cross examination of Dr Bliss took place Upon its conclusion the district attorney inquired if the defense proposed to pursue the same course with the rest of the medical witnesses and upon Robinson replying "About the same," announced that the prosecution had expected to close to-day, but under the circumstances did not deem it advisable to introduce another witness Guiteau here attempted to say something, when the district attorney bowing with mock gravity continued "If Mr Guiteau will permit me your honor I will move we adjourn Guiteau appeared to relish the pleasantry and, nodding replied "Oh certainly, you shall have full chance" The court adjourned

JUDGE HAYDEN, OF MISSOURI

a magistrate of long experience, said today he had watched both the prisoner and the jury very closely As to the former he says he appeared to him not insane in a professional sense of that word but certainly of unsound mind and he judges not from the outbursts in the court room, which may easily be the affects of a simpleton, but by his whole conduct and by his appearance especially when he is quiet The jury he thinks, and in this he agrees with all who have seen it is composed of good men It is a remarkably good looking jury and a conscientious one if one may judge from appearances, and will do all in its power to reach a sound decision, but after all, the judge said, the matter is almost entirely in Judge Cox's hand and much, perhaps, depends upon the character of his charge

BUYING THE PISTOL

O Meara, keeper of a gun and cutlery store, in the Guiteau trial to-day testified Guiteau came into the store about the sixth of June and looking at the show case pointed to the largest calibre revolver and asked to look at it. He examined it carefully, inquired as to its accuracy and then left saying he would call again A few days afterward he called, examined the pistol again, and inquired where he could test its accuracy He was told that the river edge was a good place He inquired the price of the pistol Witness told him it was a very strange pistol The prisoner paid $10 for it, a box of cartridges and a ladies penknife

JUDGE COX CALLED TO ACCOUNT

CHICAGO, Nov 19.—An attorney writes the Times in relation to Judge Cox's threat, that he would remove the prisoner from the court and go on with the trial without him if he did not behave, and cites article six of the amendment to the constitution, wherein it is said "In all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to be confronted with witnesses against him" as proof that the judge has no right to remove the accused and proceed in his absence

GUITEAU'S SQUARE MEAL

CHICAGO, November 19 A Washington special says "The pith of Guiteau's remark yesterday, that he had only had one square meal since July 2d, consists in the fact that his gluttony is notorious. His 'square meal' on the morning of the shooting was so prodigious it made a lasting impression on the mind of the hotel waiter, and was read by the country as the exploit rather of the mythical "Robbin the Bobbin, the big bellied man" than of an ordinary mortal His amiability was now explained, for all snakes etc are dormant after gorging His remarks created the greatest amusement, which was participated in by the court, jury and spectators

THE MAN WHO FIRED THE SHOT

WASHINGTON, November 19.—The young man who witnessed the shots fired into the prison van as it passed through the capitol grounds en route from the city hall to the jail says the man who did the shooting was a middle aged man well dressed and mounted on a remarkably fine white horse Immediately after the shots were fired the horse was started on a dead run and although the guard stood on the rear steps of the van with pistols in hand trying to arrest the man who did the shooting he made his escape without difficulty As he passed by the young man mentioned he remarked "I have shot the blank, blank, blank Guiteau" Telephonic communication just received from the Washington asylum situated near the district jail states that Guiteau was struck by the shot fired into the van but only slightly wounded

THE DRIVER'S STORY

The driver of the prison van gives the following particulars, the facts being substantially these Upon the adjournment of the court the van started as usual for the jail having one policeman as guard who sat on the seat with the driver Before reaching the capitol the guard noticed a young man on horseback riding leisurely behind the van near the corner of East Capitol and First street the horseman rode up to the rear of the van and hastily peeked through the small grating Guiteau was alone in the van and seated on the right hand side, the seats running lengthways of the van After evidently satisfying himself of the location of the prisoner the horseman wheeled suddenly to the left of the van and fired directly through it He then dashed to the front of the van pointed his pistol at the driver with the evident intention of intimidating him or stopping the van The driver was somewhat excited and said perhaps he intended to stop the van by shooting one of the horses Seeing an armed policeman by the side of the driver he exclaimed "I've shot the ———" and putting spurs to his horse dashed down East Capitol street in the direction of the Congressional cemetery The policeman fired one shot at the fast disappearing horseman and the driver of the van whipped his horses into a gallop and kept in sight of him for several blocks The would be avenger was however mounted on a blooded horse and rapidly escaped out into the country He was described as a smooth faced man about twenty five years of age and of dashing appearance He had on a dark brown suit The van then proceeded to the jail and Guiteau was taken out in a state of great excitement He said "I have been shot Notify Major Brock at once. Tell him to arrest the scoundrel at once and have him dealt with as he deserves" On examination it was found that the ball had just grazed Guiteau's left wrist inflicting a mere scratch The ball struck the opposite side of the van and fell upon the floor where it was found upon reaching the jail

THE SHOOTING CAUSES GREAT EXCITEMENT

The announcement of the attempt upon the life of Guiteau created intense excitement on the streets and all sorts of rumors were in circulation The would be killer was seen about the court house this afternoon and attempted to gain admission during the day but failed He was also seen to mount his horse soon after the van left and ride leisurely after it It was rumored he hailed from Illinois but there seems to be no foundation for the report

WAS IT PREARRANGED?

It was whispered in the crowd outside the the court house, just previous to adjournment that to-day would be the last of the trial A remark was also heard in the crowd that "if one wanted to see Guiteau they had better do so to-day This would lead to the belief that more than one person was aware that the attempt would be made.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT OF THE SHOOTING

Another account says "The van was midway between the capitol and the jail, when a white man, heavily built, mounted on a horse, fired into it giving Guiteau only a flesh wound The mounted police pursued the assailant for a short space, but were afraid to leave the van, and as he was well mounted, he readily outfooted the cumbersome van which followed for a while at a rattling pace, and then gave up the pursuit Guiteau was terribly frightened and demanded double guard for Monday Only one policeman and the jail guard were with the van The assailant has made good his escape, and there is no chance of his capture as public opinion is considerably in his favor Many express regret that the shot was not fatal Guiteau says the failure to kill him is another evidence of the Lord's taking care of him and will not let any harm come to him He is still uneasy and frightened

A CORRESPONDENT'S ACCOUNT

CHICAGO, Nov 19.—In connection with the attempted shooting of Guiteau to-day the following from a Washington special is interesting The crowd about the court grows larger daily The very fact of the trial proceeding arouses fears in some people that he may escape, and there are a number of people who think Guiteau ought to die whether he is insane or sane Whether the force of this belief is strong enough to lead to violent measures remains to be seen To-day two men were seen with pistols in the crowd that waited outside to see the prisoner taken from the court house to the van in which he is conveyed to the jail Not only were they armed, but they made threats against the prisoner These men were part of a daily growing crowd and this crowd always hails the prisoner when he makes his appearance with shouts, yells and insults, Guiteau is thoroughly frightened, and always bounds into the wagon as though he was pursued He is carefully guarded, some six or eight policemen following very closely, both when he goes to court and when he leaves the building There is no doubt his guard feel apprehension lest some day the crowd will take Guiteau from them and put him to death and the cause for this fear certainly grows as the evidence of insanity appears to grow stronger

A Great Horse Race Proposed

NEW YORK, November 19.—The Turf, Field and Farm to-day gives an interview with Charles H Raymond the owner of Phil Thompson He declares the record shows Phil to be faster and gamer trotter than either than Mackey's Sweetheart In April or May I will accommodate Mackey with a match provided my colt is in good health At this time there has nothing been said about matching this winter I should have challenged in April or May the four year olds of California and the world to battle provided Phil Thompson kept right The stakes are simply anticipated by me by waiting until spring to put up the forfeit It makes it more of a certainty that the colts will come together Raymond weighs his words well He believes he has the best three year old of 1881 and that he will show the best four year old of 1882 Fred Crocker It is asserted will be all right next year It he should come out in good form we can see no reason why Governor Stanford should decline to put him in a race with Phil Thompson and Sweetheart A trotting contest between four year olds for stakes of $30 000 and gate money will attract the attention of the country and the winner will reward his owner with a small fortune The great question to be decided is whether the palm shall be awarded California or Kentucky as a breeding state

THE BOSTON BANKS

Unfaithfulness of the President of the Pacific National—The Central Suspends

BOSTON November 19 The Evening Star of which ex Collector Simmons is proprietor Simmons being also a large depositor in the Pacific Bank states that the directors were called together Thursday by President Benyon who told them Weeks owed three quarters of a million and Weeks must pay in $150 000 before noon or the bank would fail At the direction of the directors he handed over that amount gave assurance that all his indebtedness would be met as soon as matured As soon as Weeks paid the money to the directors it is alleged by the Star he went to the bank and took $150 000 in certificates which were already signed and awaiting his call The directors knowing nothing of this thought the trouble obviated One director learning later of this snatched out his deposits of $100,000 At the directors meeting in the morning Weeks indebtedness was discovered to be $1 500 000 The Star further says the president had no particular excuse to offer for his misstatements Examiner Medham says it is impossible for any director or official to have had any record or examination of the books that the bank has been placed in a precarious condition as the president concealed the transaction from every one He had made no record or entry of the business with Weeks but carried it all in his head and it was only when the facts stared him in the face that he had exhausted every dollar of the depositors money and had not on hand enough to meet ordinary drafts of customers he made known to the directors the ruined condition of their bank

BOSTON, November 19.—At 11 0 the Central National bank stopped paying checks The officers say it is a temporary stoppage for the purpose of consultation among the directors as to the proper course to pursue At the clearing house to-day the Central bank was compelled to pay $400 000

Friends of the Central National bank have decided to pay the loans to that bank at the clearing house amounting to something less than $500 000

The directors of the Pacific bank strongly condemned today the action of President Benyon which caused the disaster and have turned over the concern to the bank examiner

A meeting is being held by the Pacific bank people for the purpose of reorganizing the concern Weeks said this morning that if the reorganization was effected he would be able to meet his liabilities

The Pacific bank has resumed payment

PHILADELPHIA'S WARNING

PHILADELPHIA Nov 19.—The Ledger's New York announcement, that a Boston bank had collapsed this morning in consequence of carrying mining stocks for some speculators says Is there not a good deal of the same kind of financiering in other places, with two mining exchanges in full blast here and with some millions of minings stocks afloat subject to daily speculative manipulations New York might as well go slow as Boston It is marvellous to see how many people here are dabbling in these mining wild cats and venturing their money in a class of securities that secure nothing but chance in a lottery where the blanks outnumber the prizes a thousand to one

THE CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE

BOSTON, Nov 19.—Theodore C Weeks, the broker indebted to the Pacific bank was in financial trouble a few months ago on account of the sudden collapse of Boston, Hartford and Erie bonds in which he was largely interested After making arrangements with his creditors he appeared on the street and it was understood that his losses had been made good by the subsequent advance of the bonds

Ward had resided in the state only about a month and he leaves a wife and three children in destitute circumstances

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

Interesting Meeting at the Rooms Last Evening

The El Paso County Horticultural society met in the city council rooms last evening There was a good attendance President Parsons in the chair On motion Major McAllister was appointed secretary pro tem

On motion a committee was appointed consisting of W. E. Irving, and Major McAllister to procure a suitable room for the future meetings of the society

Major McAllister moved that a committee of three members of the society be appointed by the chair for the purpose of investigating the question of the supply of irrigating water in the way of increasing the quantity by means of reservoirs etc and to co-operate with city council in regard thereto

The chair appointed on said committee Major McAllister Mr Irving and I. F. Johnson

Major McAllister then read the following paper on Strawberry Mulching:

To mulch, in the language of the lexicographer, is to cover with half rotten straw or other litter

In the cultivation of the strawberry the best results can only be attained by carefully mulching the bed in winter It is quite essential that young plants—those a year old or less ... hardy and vigorous plants the foliage of which nearly or quite covers the ground will do fairly well during ordinary winters, without mulching but even they are greatly benefitted by it

The chief object of mulching is to prevent the alternate freezing and thawing of the ground, which disturbs or breaks the rootlets of the plants this greatly lessens their productiveness and retards their growth It should be remembered that mulching is not to keep the plants warm nor to keep the frost out of the ground it is rather to keep a uniform quantity of frost in the ground

It is well not to mulch a strawberry bed until the weather gets so cold that the ground freezes every night up to that time the plants, if properly cultivated grow more or less Before mulching, the ground should be irrigated and it is probably better to put on the mulching when the ground is frozen The writer has not mulched his strawberry beds yet and will not do so until the present snow has disappeared Snow itself is as good a mulching as can be devised When the snow disappears the ground will be in admirable condition for mulching without further moistening During a long and very dry winter the ground should be wet once or twice, either by ordinary irrigation or by sprinkling with a hose this can be done without disturbing the mulching, otherwise the ground will become so dry that the plants will be greatly injured or destroyed

Almost any kind of litter will do for mulching Leaves, which can be gotten in Colorado Springs plentifully every autumn answer well A covering of an inch or two of sawdust serves a good purpose but probably the most convenient mulching is long horse manure, which can generally be obtained for the hauling If carefully preserved the same lot of mulching will do for two years or more Care should be taken not to allow heavy lumps of manure to be immediately on the plants The mulching should be placed on the strawberry bed in sufficient quantity only to cover the ground to carefully shade it from the sun's rays For me to undertake to give the proper thickness of the layer of covering would be likely to mislead, as an inch of saw dust, or even half an inch of wet leaves raked out of the ditches, would as effectually shade the ground as three or four inches of light, loose straw or hay The object desired is to completely screen the ground from the rays of the sun, and no more covering than is barely sufficient to do so should be put on In most cases inexperienced persons put on too much, and by so doing smother the plants Better not mulch at all than mulch too heavily It is well to put the mulching uniformly over the bed on as well as around the plants Whatever is put on must be kept from blowing away by the use of poles, boards, fine manure or earth thrown upon the mulching between the rows of plants Leaves are particularly liable to be blown off unless thus weighted In the east where material for mulching is sometimes scarce, earth is frequently hoed upon the plants as a protection This answers a purpose but it is troublesome to remove in the spring The winter mulching should remain on the strawberry bed until the plants start to grow in the spring Its removal then and subsequent restoration will form the subject of a future paper

Mr Cosson read an interesting article taken from the Fruit and Farm Jottings of the New York Tribune which we will publish in our next issue

A long and interesting discussion then ensued respecting the pruning of grape vines and the best methods for protecting raspberry and blackberry bushes in winter

Mr I... exhibited several peanut vines raised by him well loaded with peanuts

On motion Mr Cosson was requested to present a paper upon raspberry and blackberry and Mr Gunn was asked to present his views of grape culture to the society at its next meeting

On motion adjourned to meet next Saturday evening at 8 o'clock

SECOND NIGHT

"Uncle Isaac" Played to an Enthusiastic But Not Large Audience

The second night's performance of Uncle Isaac was witnessed by a fair sized audience The presence of an orchestra added materially to the evening's enjoyment Mr George F White the leader has great reason to be pleased with his first night's effort

As we stated last night the character on which the play depends is Uncle Isaac He alone is a show in himself and were it not for the excellent manner in which Max Fehrman represents the character Uncle Isaac as a play would have but little merit Last night Mr Fehrman presented his part with even more force than on the first evening and pleased his audience fully as well A too frequent use of the expression "Dat's my regular business" is quite objectionable in Mr Fehrman's acting but otherwise he does not overdo the interpretation of his character

Martha Wren by her graceful and effective acting charmed the audience while her neat songs brought down the house and compelled several encores

Uncle Isaac is a play that will always draw and please the masses

MR CHAFFEE'S APPOINTMENT

The friends of Mr Chaffee are quite certain of his appointment Their reasons for confidence may be summed up as follows

First That General Grant is for Chaffee because [illegible] Chaffee's daughter This is now believed not to be true because of an interview of Grant published in the Philadelphia Ledger Geo W Childs' paper In this interview which may be considered official as it appears in the paper of his most intimate friend Grant says he has not favored Chaffee and has not had any business relations with him besides Mr Conkling has not forgotten the work done by Chaffee in Chicago It will be remembered that the great fight was over the preliminary organization of the convention in the national committee Chaffee though living in New York obtained Elbert's proxy and represented Colorado on that committee against the protest of the entire state delegation This made the feeling of the Grant men very bitter toward Chaffee We do not see how the marriage has changed the situation The Grant men disliked Chaffee because he was so strong a Blaine man He is now no less a Blaine man than before and the reasons for the friends of Grant opposing him are as strong as ever General Grant says that he has only asked for one change and that is that Blaine should be removed because he is not fit to be in any man's cabinet It so he is not likely to favor Blaine's most intimate friend

Second —Another source of strength is Mr Blaine and his friend Mr Chaffee has done a great deal for Mr Blaine and Mr Blaine would undoubtedly like to return some of the favors But it is generally understood that Mr Blaine will go out of the cabinet and delicacy would seem to require that he should not attempt to influence Arthur in the formation of his new cabinet But if Mr Blaine should make an active canvass for Chaffee it will probably arouse the decided opposition of many of General Grant's friends This influence therefore cannot be positive without [illegible] such [illegible]

Third Mr Chaffee has the support of the Camerons Senator Logan and Senator Allison It is also claimed that he is supported by Senator Jones who is extremely intimate with Arthur But Senator Jones is also supposed to be supporting [illegible] for a cabinet position It is extremely unlikely that the Rocky Mountain district will get two representatives in the cabinet and this is against any very hearty support of Mr Chaffee by Senator Jones The other senators are strongly for him and will exert considerable influence

As against all these influences we have Chaffee's record, and Arthur's upright honorable career We have no doubt that the appointment will not be made If President Arthur knows the kind of man Chaffee is It is simply a question of facts If he knows he is corrupt and unclean he cannot be appointed if all the influences we have mentioned above were doubled in his behalf Mr Arthur is too sensible and too anxious for a pure administration to make so unclean an appointment

Review of New Books and Magazines Received from Publishers

THE OCTOBER MAGAZINES

The Atlantic —The first number of the Atlantic was published in 1857, and it is a fact of which the publishers may well be proud that every number since then has preserved its high standard of literary excellence The present number does not have perhaps, the general interest of its predecessors yet there are many articles which are well worth careful reading The two serials by W D Howells and Henry James, Jr are continued Richard L Dugdale has a second paper on the Origin of Crime in Society, in which he discusses at some length the 'Failure of the punitive system' arguing that the whole state of society toward the criminal must shortly change "Shakespeare and Berlioz" by Theodore Child, is a paper on the great French musician in which the writer says that Shakespeare was the inspirator of the musical efforts of Berlioz The [illegible] of the [illegible] by W [illegible] a poem The Habitant of [illegible] by Edward [illegible] [illegible] descriptive paper on the French Cathedrals and Schools in a German University by Willard Brown an experience in [illegible] university are articles of general interest and are well written Harriet W Preston takes the reader on a very enjoyable trip in her article At Canterbury and another writer tells the interesting story of [illegible] An anonymous writer has a long review of Mark Twain's new novel, Prince and Pauper in which high praises [illegible] According to this review the new departure of Mr Clemens is likely to add very much to his literary reputation and will the reviewer says give him a much more lasting hold upon the affections of his readers and admirers First of the [illegible] by Seth Merrill and other new books are noticed at length by Charles C [illegible] There is also a short poem Phyrrhus Ping by Edith M Thomas a paper by James W [illegible] entitled British State [illegible] and the Defense of Infants and the usual Contributors Club and reviews of new books

Harper's Monthly —We are sure the Col[illegible] readers of [illegible] every [illegible] magazine which [illegible] seems to grow [illegible] but [illegible] will turn first to the poem by William Allen Butler entitled The Garden of the Gods The illustration accompanying this glowing tribute to one of the best known of the [illegible] [illegible] almost needless to say a striking picture of our favorite spot [illegible] other articles of the number are very attractive While the illustrations of each paper are really very beautiful The art of wood engraving has indeed been brought to a high degree of excellence and how high may be seen in the specimens [illegible] Little [illegible] Zeid [illegible] which gives much information concerning the royal family of Sweden I B [illegible] editor of the Atlantic [illegible] written in his own brilliant style Joseph Hatton gives his third paper on Journalistic London with portraits of [illegible] Augustus Sala Clement Scott Mr Johnstone the founder of the Standard, John Morley and other famous writers and journalists of London with much interesting matter concerning them and their work The novel by Constance Woolson Anne is continued William H Gibson who writes so well and who illustrates his papers so beautifully has an outdoor paper full of descriptions of animal and vegetable life entitled Among our Footprints and The Grave of William Penn and its surroundings furnishes material for an article by Alfred Story Howard Pyle writer and artist, has an illustrated paper, Autumn Sketches in the Pennsylvania Highlands" Moncure D Conway writes of Monsters, a Mother Shipton sort of paper with much information of strange things, and there are beside articles by John Fiske, Mrs Dewing, the author of 'Beauty in Dress,' and J C Stockbridge The now famous author of Cape Cod Folks" Miss Sally McLean, has a short and bright story Lizzie Champney also drops into story telling and S S Conant, Robert Herrick and H R Hudson have poems In the Editor's Easy Chair Mr Curtis discusses the late Dr Holland the significance of the Yorktown celebration and other timely topics in his usual happy manner The book reviews are quite numerous this month and the Editor's Drawer has many new stories

JAMES R OSGOOD & CO'S NEW PUBLICATIONS

Aunt Serena —There are very few who have read and enjoyed One Summer which made its appearance some few years ago who will not be glad that the author of that very popular novel has at last broken her silence and has published through Osgood & Co, another work which has very many of the characteristics which gained for her so enviable a reputation in 'One Summer' For several years Miss Blanche Howard has been living at Stuttgart in comparative seclusion [illegible] She returns to this country and to her literary labors here, better prepared than ever before to do good work, and in 'Aunt Serena' she has given in many respects a novel which is stronger than that of One Summer though we cannot say it is any brighter or fresher One Summer was written simply to amuse, but in 'Aunt Serena' there is a lesson and a purpose which the author has worked out with considerable skill This purpose may be said to be the inculcation of the lesson that girls may do many things without injury to themselves or others which a suspicious world has long condemned as utterly wrong Miss Howard writes against the increasing stiffness of the American code of etiquette and believes that natural freshness should not always be suppressed or that a girl of seventeen should be as proper as a woman of fifty The heroine in "Aunt Serena," unless we consider the dear old lady who bears this name the real heroine, is a bright and vivacious girl, who can see no reason why she should not laugh when there is occasion, and who does not always render herself as unobserved as she might This girl, strong and full of life, often doing very bold things, or what the prosaic world has been accustomed to call so is the character through which the author leads her lessons There is [illegible] opportunity to become didactic, and yet Miss Howard is never so She shows rather by many a delicate touch how much better it is for us not to always see the wrong side as Miss Weatherstone did but to look upon the young as Aunt Serena loved to, with leniency and kindness No one will read about Aunt Serena and not fall in love with her good homely qualities, and Miss Howard has created in her one of the most loveable characters found in a novel for many a day.

The action of 'Aunt Serena' takes place on both sides of the Atlantic and there is presented the result of much acute observation and experience Miss Howard however has given us an American novel Her characters are in most cases though we cannot say in all, natural and life like As we found in 'One Summer' many delicate touches of nature so we find them in 'Aunt Serena' There are delightful bits of description, bright and charming conversations and scattered [illegible] humor that make the novel very bright and which will we are sure increase the author's reputation as a graceful, easy and entertaining writer

A Pickwickian Pilgrimage —The letters of John [illegible] written and published in 1879 in the New York Tribune, in which he described his journeys to the [illegible] spots in London and to other places in England made memorable as being the scenes of many of the novels of Dickens have been collected together by Osgood and issued in a neatly bound pocket volume To those who have already enjoyed [illegible] this collection of well written letters will prove of great interest Mr Hassard takes his readers to many of the shops street corners and public houses where Dickens has introduced the genial Pickwick After reading these letters those places seem more real and there is added a new charm to the stories Dickens has so delightfully told If one should ever desire to make a study of Dickens we know of no better guide than these letters for the writer has evidently made careful search and has been successful in finding many curious places

[illegible] Country —The essay by Charles Dudley Warner read before the Social Science association at Saratoga Springs last September is now before us in a convenient pocket edition well printed and neatly bound At the time of its delivery the essay was quite generally noticed, and was accepted as a truthful statement of what an American newspaper ought to be and what it is It is written in Mr Warner's own peculiar genial style with some quiet bits of humor thrown in with the abundance of good sound sense If all its suggestions were followed out we are sure the newspapers of today would be vastly improved Mr Warner certainly has had a long experience as editor and his opinions are entitled to that consideration which they are sure to receive when this little volume is more universally seen

Rosemary and Rue —It can scarcely be expected that every volume in a series will be interesting and we can hardly hope for universal excellence The seventh issue in Osgood's Round Robin Series is Rosemary and Rue and we do not consider that it is in all respects equal to its predecessors It seems to us to have been written more for the sake of saying something about Yorktown than because the writer had any particular story to tell One is very apt to notice any book that will deal with our revolution and with New Bedford and Newport — and we fear the writer had this fact in mind when he or she wrote Rosemary and Rue Not that we mean to imply any carelessness or haste in construction nor do we express a sense of disappointment, for that would be unjust to the author The story is carefully worked out— there are many catching if not strong situations, and in the descriptive passages one can easily find much to admire There is however a little disappointment that more was not made out of so much excellent material Perhaps if the previous volumes had not led us to expect so much in this we might be entirely satisfied, for Rosemary and Rue is a quaint story and its characters are deserving of much admiration If not a brilliant story, it is at least entertaining, and a pleasing romance of the times we never tire of reading about

—Rosemary and Rue is a Quaker story and its personages are denizens of France and America Rosemary is a daughter of a Quaker preacher, and Rue the daughter of a Portuguese Jew who is first an exile in Europe and afterward settles in America. Many of the scenes are laid in New Bedford and Yorktown The father of Rosemary does his best to prevent war against England in 1775 but failing and receiving no praise for his pains goes across the water to Old England By this journey he and his daughter are made acquainted with the Jew and his daughter The vessel on which [illegible] Rosemary and her father is captured by a French man of war and the captives are taken to the coast of Brittany where Rue and her father are staying A French officer falls in love with Rosemary, and she returns his love although before sailing from America she was engaged to another man the commander of a privateer Her letters to this commander are tampered with and when Rosemary returns to America the neglected lover still expect to claim her as his bride Rue however, the fair Jewess visits our shores before Rosemary and fall in love herself with this trusting privateer captain, and he too forgot his Rosemary and returns the love of the Jewess Now after a certain time the timid Quakeress and her gallant officer come to America The soldier is with Rochambeau's army, is wounded at Yorktown is brought back to strength by the skillful nursing of Rosemary, and after another lover of Rosemary, an aged Hebrew, the uncle of Rue, sacrifices himself to a sense of duty, the much loved Quakeress is left to love her French officer in quiet

[illegible] NEW PUBLICATIONS

Country By-Ways —Especially to those who have lived in New England "Country By Ways," by Sarah O Jewett, will be gladly welcomed Many, if not all the stories and sketches of which the volume is composed have appeared from time to time in the Atlantic, but the publishers have now presented them to the public in a new and most attractive dress and they will find many readers who have neglected to read them before, or who have been so unfortunate as not to have seen them when they were published in the magazine

Miss Jewett is a veritable lover of nature, and it is a pleasure to walk with her through the fields and by the quiet streams of New England listening to her interesting talk or to her stories of the people she meets There is that about her writings which reminds one of New England Indian summer days—quiet calm, restful and beautiful She tells her stories with no apparent effort, and with no straining after effect We presume it is because she is so in sympathy with her subject that she needs to make no effort If we remember her 'Deephaven' with a sense of extreme gratification, we will not be less likely to think of her 'Country By ways' with equal pleasure In both she has shown herself a writer of great attractiveness possessing a style at once clear and delightful, attractive and natural No one is better able than Miss Jewett to give us lasting pictures of New England life and scenes

The Denver Republican seems now to be trying to vindicate Governor Evans It criticises sharply the husband of Emma Abbott for bringing the suit against Governor Evans because of the indictments against Rothacker and Field It also prints the indictments in full to show that Emma Abbott has little reason to complain It also gives another interesting fact that Senators Teller and Hill and Governors Routt and Tabor are the bondsmen for Rothacker and Field This indicates an amount of republican harmony that was not before appreciated

LO THE BOUNDING BISON

A Railroad Train Actually Passes Through a Herd of Buffaloes

From the Bismarck Tribune

The passengers on last evening's train from the Yellowstone had an experience exceedingly rare. When about two miles from Sentinel Butte, the dividing line between Montana and Dakota, a herd of sixteen buffalo were seen a short distance ahead, within easy rifle range. There were several soldiers on board with army rifles, and numerous small revolvers were also pointed toward the excited bison. A perfect volley of lead was poured into the herd, but to no effect. They bounded away over the divide, and were soon out of sight. The passengers had no sooner begun a discussion of what they had seen in years gone by, than a danger signal from the locomotive brought every one to the lookout. A herd of twenty or thirty buffalo were making directly for the train and fearing the engine would strike them and be thrown from the track, the air brakes were set and the train nearly brought to a standstill, while the buffalo crossed the track a few feet ahead. Every gun was again leveled. Such excitement cannot be described. Bullets flew in every direction, some striking the ground as near as ten feet from the train, others raising the dust a mile distant. The train moved on slowly and the volleys of lead continued to pour from the guns of the excited passengers. Finally the smoke cleared away and the buffalo could be seen about half a mile away, trotting along as unconcerned as though they had never seen a railroad train. The disgusted passengers drew in their weapons and spent the rest of the day arguing as to the probable amount of lead that a buffalo will carry before he will weaken. Pictures of railroad trains passing through herds of buffalo are numerous but the actual experience is one of which the passengers may feel proud. They were probably but straggling bands from the main herd, which is forty or fifty miles north of the track. From Sentinel Butte east to Pleasant Valley (Dickinson) at least five hundred antelope were seen, which is but a daily occurrence. Verily, the North Pacific is the sportsman's paradise.

History of an Old Poem

Letter to the Chicago Inter Ocean

BEVIER, Mo., November [illegible].—You will confer a favor upon a constant reader and subscriber if you will publish in the columns of your valuable paper the following poem, with its preliminary explanation, viz:

Doubtless many of our readers have read General W. S. Lytle's fine poem, "Cleopatra," written the night before the battle in which he was killed. The Pittsburg Leader relates the romantic circumstances under which it was written. They were told by the late Colonel Ralf to a gentleman. He spoke of the night before the battle at which General Lytle fell. The two (Ralf and Lytle) lay together in the general's tent. They were both given to writing poetry at such times, and each had an unfinished poem on hand, and they read and criticised each other's efforts humorously for some time, when said Lytle:

"Ralf, I shall never live to finish that poem."

"Nonsense," [illegible] "you will live to write volumes of such stuff."

"A feeling has suddenly come over me," continued the general solemnly, which is more startling than a prophecy, that I shall be killed [illegible] to you I saw the green hills of the Ohio as if I stood among them. They began to recede from me in a weird way, and as they disappeared the conviction flashed through me like the lightning's shock that I would never see them again."

I rallied him for his superstition, but the belief had become strangely impressed upon his mind, and he succeeded in so far thrilling me with his own unnatural fear, that I begged him to finish his poem before he slept that such fine work might not be lost to the world.

In the small hours the general awakened me from a slumber into which I had fallen, to read to me that beautiful poem which must live as long as our literature survives, beginning:

> I am dying, Egypt, dying
> Ebbs the crimson life-tide fast

My eyes filled with tears as he read. He said not a word as he concluded, but placed the manuscript in his pocket and lay down to sleep.

Before dawn came the call to arms. When I next saw poor Lytle he was cold in death among heaps of slain. I thought of the poem, and searching the pocket where I had seen him put it, drew it forth, and it was forwarded among other things to his friends.

> I am dying, Egypt, dying
> Ebbs the crimson life-tide fast
> And the dark Plutonian shadows
> Gather on the evening blast,
> Let thine arm, O Queen, enfold me,
> Hush thy sobs and bow thine ear,
> Listen to the great heart secrets
> Thou and I thou alone, must hear.
> Though my scarred and veteran legions
> Bear their eagles high no more
> And my wrecked and scattered galleys
> Strew dark Actium's fatal shore;
> Though no glittering guards surround me
> Prompt to do their master's will,
> I must perish like a Roman
> Die the great Triumvir still—
> Let not Cæsar's servile minions
> Mock the lion thus laid low,
> 'Twas no foeman's arm that felled him
> 'Twas his own that struck the blow—
> His who, pillowed on thy bosom,
> Turned aside from glory's ray—
> He who drunk with thy caresses,
> Madly threw a world away.
> Should the base plebian rabble
> Dare assail my name at Rome,
> Where the noble spouse, Octavia
> Weeps within her widowed home
> Seek her, say the gods bear witness—
> Altars, augurs, circling wings—
> That her blood, with mine commingled
> Yet shall mount to thrones of kings.
> And for thee star-eyed Egyptian
> Glorious sorceress of the Nile
> Light the path to Stygian horrors
> With the splendors of thy smile
> Give the Cæsar crowns and arches
> Let his brow the laurel twine
> I can scorn the senate's triumphs,
> Triumphing in love like thine.
> I am dying, Egypt, dying
> Hark! the insulting foeman's cry
> They are coming! quick, my falchion
> Let me front them ere I die;
> Ah, no more amid the battle
> Shall my heart exulting swell
> Isis and Osiris guard thee—
> Cleopatra, Rome, farewell

OZONE

A New Process for Preserving all Perishable Articles, Animal and Vegetable, from Fermentation and Putrefaction, Retaining their Odor and Flavor

OZONE—Purified air, active state of oxygen.—Webster.

This is a smoothly [illegible] and pickle or any of the [illegible] processes but is simply and purely OZONE, as produced and applied by an entirely new process. Ozone is the antiseptic principle of every substance, and possesses the power to preserve animal and vegetable structures from decay.

There is nothing on the face of the earth liable to decay or spoil which Ozone [illegible] preservative will not preserve for all time in a perfectly fresh and palatable condition.

The value of Ozone as a natural preservative has been known to scientists for [illegible] but until now no means of producing it in a practical, inexpensive and simple manner have been discovered.

Microscopic observations prove that decay is due to a [illegible] matter or minute germs that develop and feed upon animal and vegetable structures. Ozone applied by the Prentiss method seizes and destroys these germs at once and thus preserves. At our offices in Cincinnati can be seen almost every article that can be thought of, [illegible] in taste [illegible] with him and test in every way the merits of Ozone as a preservative. We will [illegible] any article that [illegible] and return it to the sender [illegible]

FRESH MEATS, such as beef, mutton, veal, pork, poultry, game, fish, etc., preserved by this method, [illegible] Europe, subjected to atmospheric changes and return to this country in a state of perfect preservation.

EGGS, [illegible] treated at a cost of [illegible] one dollar a thousand dozen, and kept in an ordinary room six months or more, thoroughly preserved, the yolk held in its normal condition, and the eggs as fresh and perfect as when they were treated, and will sell as strictly choice. The advantage in preserving eggs is readily seen, [illegible] as when they can be bought for six or [illegible] cents a dozen and by holding them can be sold for an advance of from one hundred to three hundred per cent. One man with this method can preserve 5,000 dozen a day.

FRUITS may be permitted to ripen in their native climate and can be transported to any part of the world.

The juice expressed from fruits can be held for an indefinite period without fermentation—hence the great value of this process for producing a temperance beverage. Cider can be held perfectly sweet for any length of time.

VEGETABLES can be kept for an indefinite period, [illegible] in their natural condition, retaining their [illegible] and [illegible] treated in their original packages at a small expense. All grains, flour, meal, etc., are held in their normal condition.

BUTTER after being treated by this process will not become rancid.

Dead human bodies treated before decomposition sets in can be held in a natural condition for weeks without puncturing the skin or mutilating the body in any way. Hence the great value of Ozone to undertakers.

There is no change in the slightest particular in the appearance of any article thus preserved, no [illegible] of any foreign or unnatural odor or taste.

The process is so simple that a child can operate it as well as a man. There is no expensive apparatus or machinery required.

A [illegible] filled with different articles, such as [illegible] can be treated at one time with no [illegible] or expense.

☞ [illegible] there is nothing that Ozone will not preserve. Think of everything you can that is liable to sour, decay, or spoil, and then remember that we guarantee that Ozone will preserve it in exactly the condition you want it for any length of time. If you will remember this, it will save asking questions as to whether Ozone will preserve this or that article—it will preserve anything and everything you can think of.

There is not a township in the United States in which a live man cannot make any amount of money, from $1,000 to $10,000 a year that he pleases. We desire to get a live man interested in each county in the United States, in whose hands we can place this preservative, and through him secure the business which every county ought to produce.

A FORTUNE Awaits Any Man who Secures Control of OZONE in any Township or County.

A. C. Bowen, Marion, Ohio, has cleared $2,000 in two months, $2 for a test package was his first investment.

Woods Brothers, Lebanon, Warren county, Ohio, made $6,000 on eggs purchased in August and sold November 1st. $2 for a test package was their first investment.

F. K. Raymond, Morristown, Belmont county, Ohio, is clearing $2,000 a month in handling, and selling Ozone. $2 for a test package was his first investment.

D. F. Webber, Charlotte, Eaton county, Mich., has cleared $[illegible],000 a month since August. $2 for a test package was his first investment.

J. B. Gaylord, 83 La Salle st., Chicago, is preserving eggs, fruit, etc., for the commission men of Chicago, charging 1½c. per dozen for eggs, and other articles in proportion. He is preserving 5,000 eggs per day, and on his business is making $3,000 a month clear. $[illegible] for a test package was his first investment.

The Cincinnati Feed company, 405 West Seventh street, is making $[illegible] a month in handling brewers malt, preserving and shipping it as feed to all parts of the country. Malt unpreserved sours in 24 hours. Preserved by Ozone it keeps perfectly sweet for months.

These are instances which we have asked the privilege of publishing. There are scores of others. Write to any of the above parties and get the evidence direct.

Now, to prove the absolute truth of everything we have said in this paper, we propose to place in your hands the means of proving for yourself that we have not claimed half enough. To any person who doubts any of these statements, and who is interested sufficiently to make the trip, we will pay all traveling and hotel expenses for a visit to this city, if we fail to prove any statement that we have made.

HOW TO SECURE A FORTUNE WITH OZONE

A test package of Ozone, containing a sufficient quantity to preserve one thousand dozen eggs, or other articles in proportion, will be sent to any applicant on receipt of $2. This package will enable the applicant to pursue any line of tests and experiments he desires, and thus satisfy himself as to the extraordinary merits of Ozone as a preservative. After having thus satisfied himself, and had time to look the field over to determine what he wishes to do in the future—whether to sell the article to others, or confine it to his own use, or any other line of policy which is best suited to him and to his township or county—we will enter into an arrangement with him that will make a fortune for him and give us good profits. We will give exclusive township or county privileges to the first responsible applicant who orders a test package and desires to control the business in his locality. The man who secures control of Ozone for any special territory, will enjoy a monopoly which will surely enrich him.

Don't let a day pass until you have ordered a test package and if you desire to secure an exclusive privilege we assure you that delay may deprive you of it, for the applications come in to us by scores every mail—many by telegraph. First come, first served, is our rule.

If you do not care to send money in advance for the test package we will send it C. O. D., but this will put you to the expense of charges for return money. Our correspondence is very large; we have all we can do to attend to the shipping of orders and giving attention to our working agents. Therefore we cannot give any attention to letters which do not order Ozone. If you think of any article that you are doubtful about Ozone preserving, remember that it will preserve it, no matter what it is.

REFERENCES:

We desire to call your attention to a class of references which no enterprise or firm based on anything but the soundest business success and highest commercial merit could secure.

We refer, by permission, as to our integrity and to the value of the Prentiss Preservative, to the following gentlemen: Edward C. Boyce, member board of public works; E. O. Eshelby, city comptroller; Amor Smith, Jr., collector internal revenue; Wulsin & Worthington, attorneys; Martin H. Harrell and B. F. Hopkins, county commissioners; W. S. Cappeller, county auditor, all of Cincinnati, Hamilton county, Ohio. These gentlemen are each familiar with the merits of our preservative, and know from actual observation that we have without question—

The Most Valuable Article in the World.

The $2 you invest in the test package will surely lead you to secure a township or county, and then your way is absolutely clear to make from $2,000 to $10,000 a year.
